In a single day, the lives of four children weave together through an amazing adventure. Virgil Salinas is shy and feels misunderstood. Valencia Somerset is deaf, intelligent, and very stubborn. Kaori Tanaka is a self-proclaimed psychic whose little sister, Gen, is always following her around. And Chet Bullens wishes the weird kids would just stop being so different so he could concentrate on basketball. But when Chet pulls a mean prank on Virgil and his pet guinea pig, Kaori, Gen, and Valencia must go on an epic quest to find the missing Virgil. Through luck, smarts, bravery, and a little help from the universe, a rescue is performed, a bully is put in his place, and friendship blooms.

El pirata Pat Trax

The Pirate Pat Trax

María Margarita Londoño

Pat Trax was a very strange pirate with a pirate ship and a parrot that spoke Japanese. But he also had a secret wrapped up in the ocean’s waves, algae, octopus, whales, and treasures. He also had a dream to cross the seven seas—even though he lacked a red beard, eye patch, and wooden leg, and didn’t inspire much fear in anyone. He was content to watch his multicolored freedom flag wave in the wind.

María Margarita Londoño is a Colombian author of books for children and adults.

El señor Bruum

Mr. Bruum

Etienne Gerin

Mr. Bruum is a champion. He places first in every race and doesn’t have time to listen to others or enjoy a nice dinner. Being the best has a downside: Mr. Bruum is always alone. He’ll have to discover that there’s more to life, that there are advantages to slowing down and enjoying the beauty around him, and that the journey matters more than the destination. The 1920s-style illustrations in this book include similarly vintage flying masks and scarves to recall a time when expressing speed in art was all the rage.

Etienne Gerin is an artist who trained at the Emile Cohl School in Lyon. He is passionate about children’s books.

Un momento favorable

A translation of An Acceptable Time (9780312368586)

Madeleine L’Engle

“A rich and heady brew . . . fine fantasy, firmly rooted in reality.” —Publisher’s Weekly, on the English-language edition

“When Polly O’Keefe visits her grandparents in Connecticut, she finds herself caught up in the lives of three mysterious strangers [who lived] 3,000 years ago [and] travels back in time to play a crucial role in an ancient confrontation. . . L’Engle has again achieved the award-winning style of A Wrinkle in Time. . . Highly recommended.” —VOYA, on the English-language edition

Polly couldn’t be more surprised when discovering in her own flesh the mystical forces that surround her grandparents’ farm. She will soon find herself in a landscape surrounded by lightning, fog, a trembling earth beneath her feet . . . and a group of young men armed with spears heading towards her. Why has a time gate opened and dropped Polly into a world that existed 3,000 years ago? Will she be able to get back to the present before the time gate closes—and leaves her to face a group of people who believe in human sacrifice?

Madeleine L’Engle is a popular author of many books for children and adults. She has interspersed her writing and teaching career with raising three children, maintaining an apartment in New York, and a farmhouse called “Crosswicks.” Her novel, A Wrinkle in Time, won the Newbery Medal in 1963.

El odio que das
A translation of The Hate U Give (9780062498533)
Angie Thomas

Sixteen-year-old Starr Carter moves between two worlds: the poor neighborhood where she lives and the fancy suburban prep school she attends. The uneasy balance between these worlds is shattered when Starr witnesses the fatal shooting of her childhood best friend Khalil at the hands of a police officer. Khalil was unarmed. Soon afterward, his death is a national headline. Some are calling him a thug, maybe even a drug dealer and a gangbanger. Protesters are taking to the streets in Khalil’s name. Some cops and the local drug lord try to intimidate Starr and her family. What everyone wants to know is: what really went down that night? And the only person alive who can answer that is Starr. But what Starr does—or does not—say could upend her community. It could also endanger her life.

Angie Thomas holds a BFA in creative writing from Belhaven University and is an inaugural winner of the Walter Dean Myers Grant 2015, awarded by We Need Diverse Books. Her debut novel, El odio que das, was acquired by Balzer + Bray/Harper-Collins in a 13-house auction. Hervé Manath is a shy and odd seventeen-year-old about to start at a new school. The twist is he’s also cursed—he needs to take human life in order to survive. This has made him pretty isolated, but the popular and bubbly Dante manages to break down Hervé’s barriers to become friends. He’s also how Hervé comes to meet Helena, who turns his world upside down. Divided between his hunter’s instinct and his belief in himself as a soulless shell with no hope of a normal life, he begins to open up to his friends. But all that joy disappears when someone discovers him, someone who has the power to ruin his life...or free him from his curse forever. This novel, at times innocent and cruel, provides a nuanced portrait of the inner lives of teenagers—insecurities, weaknesses, fears, and all, but also their acts of kindness and the darkest parts of their hearts.

Nora Z. Wilson is an Argentinian playwright and scriptwriter. Her work includes a documentary series about Buenos Aires slang and the plays Grasita and Mutñequita robada. This is her first novel.

The people love his twin even more in death than they did when she was alive. The Elders treat him as a figurehead. And worst of all, the winds of Eden are faltering. But despite what everyone believes, Carys is alive. Exiled to the wilderness, Carys struggles to control the powers that have broken free inside her. And as she grows stronger, so does her conviction that she must return to the Palace of Winds, face her twin and root out the treachery that began long before the first Trials started. The Kingdom of Eden is growing darker with each passing day. Brother and sister, former foes, must decide whether some betrayals cut too deep to be forgiven—and whether one will wear the crown or both will lose everything.

Antología de relatos góticos
Anthology of Gothic Stories
Edgar Allan Poe, Henry James, and Mary Shelley

Gothic horror arose as a counterpoint to the Enlightenment, as a way of escaping rationality in favor of a sinister world of castles, vengeful spirits, organ music, and creaking doors. This selection includes some of the best classic Gothic horror stories written by fundamental authors in the genre.

Edgar Allan Poe was an American writer, poet, critic, and journalist. He is recognized as a master of short stories and is known particularly for his gothic novels and horror stories. He is considered the inventor of the detective story.

Las aventuras de Arthur Gordon Pym

Edgar Allan Poe

It’s no exaggeration to call Edgar Allan Poe one of the pioneers of horror and science fiction writing, or to declare that no author has left a legacy like his. This book is unique as the only novel he ever wrote. What begins as a fascinating maritime adventure gives way to a spine-tingling adventure that would later be taken up by the likes of Jules Verne and HP Lovecraft.

Anna Karenina

A translation of Anna Karenina
(9780143035008)
Leo Tolstoy

Together with the monumental War and Peace, Anna Karenina is one of Leo Tolstoy’s most important works and a classic of Russian realism. It contains all the hallmarks of that genre, from pointed social critique to psychologically complex characters. Anna Karenina’s misadventures and eagerness to integrate into a hypocritical society that condemns her for adultery, but pardons her lover’s excesses, offer a portrait of nineteenth-century Russia in all its contradictions. It also encourages us to reflect on the way women are invisibilized in society.

Leo Tolstoy was a nineteenth-century Russian novelist. His books include War and Peace and The Death of Ivan Ilyich.

Siempre un destierro

Always an Exile

Gabriela Couturier

How many times can a person be uprooted and expected to continue living? Don’t we, like trees, die the very first time, even when we continue to give fruit? The roots were in France but rummaging in the past may lead to more stories than they planned to face. Thus, the investigation of a certain letter, a certain trip, a certain marriage, brings with it the uncontrollable avalanche of the past: from Mexico City to the French colony in Veracruz, to the Savoyard towns in the middle of the Alps, to the military campaign in Algeria and Tunisia. Old faces appear: that of Simon-Claude, the prodigious doctor who managed to cure rabies; and Ernest, the soldier who loved three women and lost three futures. This is a novel about identity, exile, uprooting, love, lost illusions, and the persistence of memory.

Gabriela Couturier received a degree in international relations from the Colegio de México and a master’s in administration from Harvard University. She has published essays and stories in the magazine Nexos and in the newspaper Laberinto del Milenio. She is also the author of Esa otra orfandad.

Henry Miller

These letters between Henry Miller and Michael Fraenkel, written between 1935 and 1938, are relevant less for their analysis of Hamlet than for the way the authors set their thoughts free on the page. They debated topics that were near to them and discussed the world in general in what is considered some of Miller’s best writing.

Henry Miller was an American author who spent much of his career in Paris. He became an exemplar of modern bohemian life and a model for the Beat Generation and writers such as Charles Bukowski and Norman Mailer.

Las niñas bien

The Good Girls

Guadalupe Loaeza

Fated to become her most famous title, this first book by Guadalupe Loaeza contains all the elements that she would explore in her later work. With innocence, grace, and funny spirit, this text portrays the wealthiest sector of Mexican society. Far from having academic pretensions, the author’s pieces are malicious chronicles of different aspects of these lives surrounded by luxury objects, trips abroad, expensive clothing, and spectacular homes. And yet, these lives seem to lack a resting place beyond their displays of acquisitive power and the space of the shopping mall. Two decades since its first edition, this book can also be read like a scrapbook—for today, the rich find fun in other ways, were changed by economic crises, or fell along with the stock market.

Guadalupe Loaeza has worked at national newspapers such as La Jornada and Reforma. She is the author of many books such as Mujeres maravillosas, Ellas y nosotras, Parejas, and many more.

Mary Karr

Who knew it was possible to laugh out loud at a book about love, alcoholism, depression, marriage, motherhood, and God? This memoir tells of a woman's difficult childhood in Texas and her process finding relief in her love for her son, or the help of others who came before her. This unclassifiable book is, ultimately, a story of growing up and finding a place in the world.

Mary Karr is an American writer. She is the author of The Liars’ Club, which was a New York Times best-seller and named the book of the year by The New York Times Book Review, The New Yorker, People, and Time. She has also received the Whiting Award, a Radcliffe’s Bunting Fellowship, two Pushcart Prizes, and a Guggenheim fellowship. She is also the author of The Art of Memoir and Cherry.

“In this brilliant, compassionate book, Wendy Mogel has something to offer every parent. By practicing what Mogel recommends, parents will find the dance they do with their children as they wind their way to adulthood less uncertain, less painful, and more joyful than it is now. Read it and teach yourself how to do it.” —Barry Schwartz, author, Practical Wisdom and Why We Work, on the English language edition

The art of talking with children isn’t all about the message, but rather depends on learning to use a vocabulary that evolves as they grow. Ways of speaking, listening, and using body language are also critical for helping children see their parents as authority figures and better communicate their emotions and needs.

Dr. Wendy Mogel is a clinical psychologist, international public speaker, and author of the bestselling The Blessing of a Skinned Knee and The Blessing of a B Minus. She is also on the board of Parents magazine.

Mediations

Walter Benjamin and Jenaro Talens

This collection of fragments from Walter Benjamin shed light on a particular area of his work, that concerned with representation and mediation. For Benjamin, it’s not in the binary of form and content that important ideas or problems are inscribed, but rather in the rhetorical devices that appear to play a merely supporting role.

Walter Benjamin was a German critic, philosopher, and essayist whose thought combines elements of German Idealism or Romanticism, historical materialism, and Jewish mysticism. He contributed strongly to aesthetic theory and Western Marxism and is associated with the Frankfurt School. Jenaro Talens is a Spanish poet, essayist, and translator. He is a professor of Spanish literature at the University of Geneva.

Anxiety 3: Jealousy, a translation of the Portuguese (9788557171336)
Augusto Cury

Augusto Cury says there have never been as many prisoners in free societies as there is now. Indeed: jealousy subjects us to a heavy emotional condemnation that we burden ourselves with. This affects men and women from all walks of life, professions and social classes. Who says he loves the other but tries to change and control him, lives in a state of self-indifference, frustration and dissatisfaction that will never be filled. As the author affirms: jealousy is a disease that must be cured if we dream of living free of emotional chains.

Augusto Cury is a psychiatrist, investigator, and writer. He designed the Theory of Multi-Focal Intelligence, which outlines the complete process of constructing thoughts and the formation of the “I” as the mental administrator. He manages the Academy of Intelligence in São Paulo, and is considered the single best-selling author in Brazil.

The Path of Discovery
Jorge Bucay

A beautiful and enriching guide to thinking about our interactions with others, this book by Jorge Bucay urges us to reflect on how our encounters with our peers allow us to grow internally. While the conquest of self-realization is an individual task, it can’t be achieved without relationships and the help of others. The key is to love one another and to surrender to and enrich the company of others. “Without the interactions of others,” declares Bucay, “we aren’t healthy. Without others’ existence, our lives would be empty although our houses may be full with expensive possessions.”

De la felicidad en las pequeñas cosas

On Happiness in Small Things, a translation of the German (9783736501331)

Anselm Grün

What do we really need to find happiness or satisfaction? And what is it that prevents us from being at peace with what is? In this book, Anselm Grün reflects on the various aspects of satisfaction. She believes that it’s often enough to see things from another perspective to feel comfortable with ourselves or our life. This process is made possible by our attitude towards gratitude: if we’re grateful for today, we can also find happiness in small things, no matter how much we may be struggling.

Anselm Grün is a monk at the Münsterschwarzach abbot and is Germany’s best-known spiritual author.

Browne Distinguished Professor of Psychology, University of Pennsylvania, and New York Times Bestselling author of Grit, on the English language edition

In our world, girls are raised to be perfect and take care of others, while boys learn to be brave, face challenges, and carry on. As a result, when girls grow into women, they’re afraid to fail, make mistakes, or be themselves, and they sacrifice their goals and dreams.

A translation of The 33 Strategies of War (9780670034574)

Robert Greene

In the competitive and violent world of today, it is impossible to avoid conflict, especially if we want to reach important goals, fulfill our wishes, and gain the respect of others. According to Robert Greene, the everyday life has become a permanent struggle that is waged on all fronts. War is not a separate kingdom that is divorced from the rest of society. It is a field that is eminently human, a grocery store of the best and the worst of our nature. It is indispensable to learn to face the daily battles with the best strategies possible. There is nobody better to teach us than the great warriors of the past, whose lessons and examples allow us to vanquish our enemies and to conquer our social and professional objectives. Abundantly illustrated with examples from history, such as Hannibal, Alexander the Great, Julius Caesar, Napoleon Bonaparte, and Frederick the Great, each of the 33 chapters outlines a strategy that will help you win life's wars. An indispensable book, The 33 Strategies of War provides all the psychological ammunition you need to overcome patterns of failure and forever gain the upper hand.

Storytelling as Communication Strategy (9782350174266), a translation of the French

Guillaume Lamarre

Once upon a time, communication went only one way. Brands and institutions were limited to repeating their messages over and over. But when the digital era hit, the public began to choose how and when they wanted to receive this information, and brands had to completely reinvent their communication strategies. But one day, storytelling emerged as a methodology perfectly adapted to the new context and brand and institutional communications became a way to build richer and more complex connections with users. This book explains the art of storytelling as a communication technique in all its dimensions to help us transmit messages effectively.

Also available as Who Owns Poverty? (9781912157129)

Martin Burt

This is the story of the one question about global poverty we never thought to ask: who owns it? It’s a question with an unexpected answer, one that challenges everything that we thought we knew about what poverty is, and what we can do about it. This is a story of a powerful data-driven methodology being used in a dozen countries across 5 continents. It’s a new approach that puts poor families in charge of defining and diagnosing their own unique, multidimensional poverty—who by owning the problem, own the solution. This book is for all the governments, development NGOs, charities, dreamers, thinkers, doers and leaders who are frustrated with limiting their aspirations to reducing poverty, or alleviating its effects—and the lack of progress we face in doing either. This is a book about unleashing trapped energy within poor families to do the unthinkable: eliminate global poverty once and for all.

Dr. Martin Burt is the founder and Executive Director of the Paraguayan Foundation, a non-profit organization dedicated to promoting social entrepreneurship and economic self-reliance to eliminate poverty worldwide. He has written books on economics, development, municipal government, poetry and education. He graduated from Pacific University and George Washington University. He has a PhD from Tulane University, and is a Visiting Professor of Social Entrepreneurship at the Worcester Polytechnic Institute, and a Distinguished Visiting Professor at the University of California, Irvine.

El poder del enojo femenino para cambiar el mundo

A translation of Rage Becomes Her (9781501189555)
Soraya Chemaly

“At turns enraging, comforting and inspiring, Rage Becomes Her is a must read.” —NPR (Best Book of 2018), on the English language edition

“How many women cry when angry because we’ve held it in for so long? How many discover that anger turned inward is depression? Soraya Chemaly’s Rage Becomes Her will be good for women, and for the future of this country. After all, women have a lot to be angry about.” —Gloria Steinem, on the English language edition

Girls grow up learning to suppress their anger and never let it out, even though it may damage their bodies and minds in unforeseen ways. And yet, women have plenty of legitimate reasons to be angry, from the crudest and most gruesome acts of misogyny to subtle everyday sexism that reinforces gender roles in insidious ways.

Soraya Chemaly is an award-winning writer and activist whose work focuses on the role of gender in culture, politics, religion, and media. She is the director of the Women’s Media Center Speech Project. Her work has appeared in Time, The Verge, The Guardian, The Nation, Quartz, Salon, TheHuffington Post, and The Atlantic.
